Nixon, Thieu Talk Crucial To Viet Fate

An AP News Analysis

SAIGON (AP) — Many South Vietnamese officials feel that the summit meeting on Midway between President Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu will be the most crucial allied diplomatic meeting of the year.

The cautious Saigon leader has made thorough preparations far overshadowing anything done for his diplomatic encounters with President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The old play-it-by-ear attitude of South Vietnamese officialdom has largely disappeared as the Paris peace talks continue and the realization deepens that Nixon is determined to make an all-out try to de-Americanize the war.

At Midway, in the first meeting as presidents between the two men, Thieu will be probing to nail down just how fast and how far Nixon is determined to go.

Although they are agreed in principle on Nixon's eight-point peace plan, there is vast room for disagreement on the actual mechanics of carrying it out. Diplomatic sources say Thieu was well aware of the pitfalls in agreeing to the Nixon plan and that the early summit meetings was part of his price.

While American officials in Saigon have studiously emphasized unity between South Vietnam and the United States, they also have been listening closely to Thieu's recent speeches threatening to fight alone rather than accept a coalition government with the Communists.

During his state visits to sympathetic regimes in Seoul and Taipei, Thieu said he would not even talk about a coalition government in the Midway sessions.

This was evidently Thieu's way of sugar-coating the problem for domestic consumption. An integral part of Nixon's plan is free elections for South Vietnam, and free elections inevitably would mean some form of Communist participation in electoral planning and processes. Coupled with likely differences over electoral procedures are questions concerning the timing of any American troop withdrawal and the readiness of South Vietnam's military machine to fill the gap.

On all these points, diplomatic informants say, Nixon wants maximum speed while Thieu's attitude is cautious and apprehensive.

He is particularly concerned that an American troop withdrawal, without a mutual North Vietnamese pullback negotiated at Paris, could have severe repercussions within South Vietnam.

The military men backing Thieu are far from making any immediate threat of a coup d'etat but they have become restive at the political prospects now being discussed in Saigon cafes. Any unilateral American withdrawal would increase such domestic political pressures unless delicately handled.

Mass Shellings North Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The enemy slammed dozens of rockets and mortars into the Da Nang area overnight and terrorists sped through streets hurling explosives.

A second day of savage attacks began northwest of Saigon in a surge apparently designed to influence Sunday's summit conference on Midway.

First reports Saturday said five persons were killed and 37 wounded in the barrage of nearly 40 missiles against Da Nang and military posts around the northern port city.

Enemy losses were reported high in the continuing attack northwest of Saigon near Cambodia.

The U.S. Command declined to characterize the intensified enemy action as the start of a new full-scale offensive. But one field officer said: "They started their summer offensive yesterday."

The field officer referred to more than 100 shellings overnight Thursday-Friday and attacks on allied positions near Cambodia that marked the sharpest enemy initiatives in almost a month.

Four of the dead at Da Nang were said to be U.S. airmen at the Da Nang airbase, which took eight 122mm rockets in two barrages. Aircraft were still able to use the field.

One rocket hit gasoline drums beside a tied-up cargo ship with petroleum products aboard, touching off an explosion and a blaze that sent the ship to the bottom of the Da Nang River. Three persons were reported injured.

Other targets included the Marble Mountain helicopter base, a Seabee compound and a supply depot. It was the first shelling of Da Nang city since May 7.

Viet Cong terrorists—including a 10-year-old boy—staged six attacks in the city. Among the wounded were three children. Two Americans were injured when the child terrorist hurled a satchel charge at a dining patio of a hotel.

Along the Cambodian frontier, 50 miles northwest of Saigon, the enemy was said to have lost more than 300 dead in 24 hours as fighting went into a second day.

First field reports Saturday said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong seized part of a village on the outskirts of Tay Ninh City and mounted fresh attacks elsewhere in the area.

The enemy launched a second assault on the U.S. 25th Infantry Division's Firebase Crook, which overlooks a prime infiltration route out of Cambodia.

First reports gave few details but said some Americans were wounded slightly. In an updated report, the U.S. Command said 77 North Vietnamese died attacking the base Friday and American losses were one killed, four wounded.

Military spokesmen in Saigon said on Friday that the renewed shellings—heaviest since May 11—and the border attacks apparently were an attempt to influence the Midway conference between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Captured enemy documents had indicated a series of stepped up attacks June 5-10. Most of the fighting raged along the northwestern and northern approaches to Saigon, where three North Vietnamese divisions are apparently trying to break through to the capital.

Military spokesmen said the Communist command took advantage of last week's ceasefire for Buddha's birthday to move in rockets, mortars and other supplies for Friday's attacks.

One of the heaviest engagements was a North Vietnamese assault on the U.S. 25th Infantry Division's Fire Base Crook, about 55 miles northwest of Saigon and six miles east of the enemy sanctuaries on the Cambodian border.

No Penalty For Acting Against Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Friday that draft boards have no right to reclassify registrants because of antiwar or antidraft activities, as draft director Lewis B. Hershey had suggested they do.

In a now-famous letter to local boards Oct. 26, 1967, Hershey reasoned that deferments are issued in the national interest, and anyone trying to hamper the draft or public policy could not be acting in the public interest.

Although Hershey stopped short of actually telling draft boards to deny deferments to antigovernment demonstrators, the Court of Appeals called his letter a "declaration of war against antiwar protesters."

The National Student Association, which carried the case to court, won only a partial victory, however.

The appeals court, like the U.S. District Court earlier, rejected the student group's contention that the delinquency provisions of the draft law are unconstitutional.

China Delivers Trespass Charge

TOKYO (AP) — Peking charged Friday that hundreds of Soviet armored vehicles made a foray last month into Sinkiang Province—site of Red China's nuclear test grounds—and that the Russians have provoked numerous other frontier incidents since the border clashes in March.

The Soviet Union denied the charge. Foreign Ministry spokesman Leonid I. Zamyatin told a news conference in Moscow: "According to our information, everything is completely calm on the border."

Peking obviously timed its note to the Soviet Union to coincide with the world Communist meeting in Moscow. Red China and all Communist-ruled nations of Asia are boycotting the conference, but Peking has its supporters there.

There have been indications that the Kremlin expected Red China would make some move to try to embarrass the Soviet Union at a time when world party leaders are assembled in Moscow.

The New China News Agency said the Chinese Foreign Ministry handed a note to the Soviet Embassy in Peking charging that Chinese have been killed or kidnapped in border incidents "still occurring incessantly."

The note declared that since the March 2 and 15 battles on the Ussuri River island of Chen-pao—called Damansky by the Russians—the Soviet Union has extended its "armed provocations against China" to other parts of that Manchurian border and to Sinkiang.

Peking asserted these provocations were carried out while the Soviet government was "expressing willingness to hold 'consultations' on the border incidents."

Among the charges was one that hundreds of armored vehicles pushed as deep as four miles into Yumin County in northwest Sinkiang Province May 2 and ordered Chinese guards to leave or be killed.

"An incident of bloodshed was averted only because the Chinese side exercised forbearance," the note asserted.

On May 20, the note continued, nearly 100 Soviet troops dashed among Chinese border guards in Sinkiang and elsewhere in the province and beat up and kidnapped three civilians and two border guards.

The Chinese long have been sensitive about the sprawling northwest province of Sinkiang, which Peking calls the Sinyang-Uighur autonomous region. Last month the Chinese charged the Russians had provoked incidents there since 1960 and had coerced thousands to go to the Soviet Union.

The Chinese suspect the Russians would like to seize the nuclear installations in Sinkiang, which are 500 miles or so from the nearest point on the Soviet border. The Russians exploited Sinkiang's uranium deposits after the Chinese Communists conquered the mainland in 1949. Peking finally persuaded the Russians to leave.

THE BODIES of Elizabeth Perry, 19, of Excelsior, Minnesota, and Susan Davis, 19, (right) of Camp Hill, Pa., were found Monday near the resort town of Ocean City, N.J. The two had been missing since May 30.

Army To Build Grave For Robert Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is planning to build a $677,000 permanent gravesite for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, featuring his quotations inscribed in granite.

The gravesite of the assassinated senator, who died a year ago Friday, is located on a grassy hill south of the resting place of his brother, President John F. Kennedy, in Arlington National Cemetery.

The federal government will pay $257,800 of the cost and the Kennedy family the remaining $419,200. If the price should go above the present estimate, the Kennedy family will finance the difference, the Army said.

A start on construction of the permanent gravesite awaits congressional action. It will be ready about a year after Congress votes the money.

About seven million visitors stopped at the graves of the Kennedy brothers last year, the Army said.

The plans for Robert Kennedy's grave are less elaborate than the grave of President Kennedy, which cost $2.4 million.

The late senator's resting place will be marked by a white wooden cross, separated from a semicircular granite platform set in the grass at the base of the hill.

The 30-foot-radius platform and walkways will be built of granite to match the existing paving at the grave of President Kennedy.

The design contemplates a reflecting pool, measuring 10 by 38 feet, on the east side of the platform, facing toward Washington across the Potomac river.

A low granite wall inscribed with Senator Kennedy's quotations will be constructed along the east edge of the pool.

The Army Engineers intend to build a special new walkway exclusively for the use of the handicapped and stretching from the senator's grave to that of his brother.

The area surrounding Senator Kennedy's grave will be landscaped with American beech, holly and other plantings.

The Army said the Kennedy family was consulted "at all stages of design development."

Mafia Linked To Insurance Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee and investigators from four federal agencies are digging into the tangled affairs of three financially troubled insurance companies whose policies and bonds backed millions of dollars in bank loans.

Money from some of the loans ended up with John A. Masiello Sr., a Mafia loan shark, and his son, John Jr.

The antimonopoly subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., plans to open hearings June 18 into the troubles of State Fire and Casualty Co. of Miami, Fla.

Florida insurance officials, as well as former officers of the now defunct company, were sent letters inviting them to testify. The subcommittee has made no announcement, but several recipients of letters acknowledged they had been invited to appear.

The other two insurance companies whose affairs are under investigation are Community National Life Insurance Co. of Tulsa, Okla., and Financial Security Life Insurance Co. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Investigators from the Justice Department, the Post Office Department, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Internal Revenue Service are trying to unravel the complex deals.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, also expressed alarm over the situation recently when he warned federal banking officials that "a large number of banks across the country stand to lose millions of dollars in loans collateralized by questionable insurance policies."

Patman estimated the outstanding loans total about $25 million.

All three insurance companies have had recent dealings with either John Masiello Sr. or his son.

The elder Masiello was in the news recently when the New York State investigation Commission disclosed that businesses he controlled had received more than a half million dollars in loans from business

SBA loans have since been recalled and repaid.

The commission identified the elder Masiello as a member of a New York Mafia group. Father and son also are under federal indictment on charges of bribery and conspiracy in connection with Post Office Department mail-hauling contracts.

The commission disclosed that John Masiello Sr. received $181,500 of $350,000 loaned to a Long Island, N.Y. businessman who used surety bonds from State Fire as collateral.

At a public hearing April 2 before the Oklahoma insurance commissioner, it was disclosed that Community National had sold John Masiello Jr. a $110,000 single-premium paid-up life insurance policy.

An SEC attorney testified Masiello paid for the policy with near worthless stock of a shell corporation that "had no assets, no liabilities and no tax advantage."

That policy, the Oklahoma hearing was told, was used as collateral for a $100,000 loan.

Investigators have discovered also that John Masiello Jr. used a $150,000 bond from State Fire and Casualty Co. to purchase an annuity policy from Financial Security Life Insurance Co. They are trying to determine whether that policy has been used as collateral for a loan.

Details Of Sea Wreck Unfold

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — Lt. Cmdr. George L. McMichael swam across a wardroom and scrambled through a hatch, then found himself standing on the side of the bow section of his ship, the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans.

"The mast was flat in the water," he said here Friday. "The stacks were half in the water and the section was starting to capsize." He plunged into the sea and swam away. Then he did a backstroke.

He saw the bow rear up, and slide easily under the South China Sea.

"I could see well because of the bright, bright moonlight," the Evans' executive officer went on. "I looked at my watch and it was 4:17 or 4:18."

The official report on the collision of the Frank E. Evans and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne said it occurred at 4:15 a.m.

This meant that the bow section of the Evans went down two or three minutes after impact, McMichael told a news conference.

With her apparently went most of the 74 crewmen lost last Tuesday. The stern remained afloat.

McMichael and 196 other survivors of the Evans reached this big U.S. Navy base Friday aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Kearsarge.

The Melbourne reached Singapore where an officer told a news conference one American seaman was hurled bodily at impact onto the Melbourne's flight deck, hovering 45 feet above the surface of the sea. He was saved.

McMichael and the Evans' skipper, Cmdr. Albert S. McLeMure, gave their accounts of the collision at a news conference after they came ashore.

But they declined to discuss details leading up to and involving the collision itself because a joint U.S.-Australian investigating board will meet Monday at Subic Bay to determine how it happened.

In Singapore, the skipper of the Melbourne, Capt. John Stevenson, 48, told reporters his vessel was carrying out "standard maneuvers" at the time.

His job and that of the escorting destroyers was to hunt out submarines in war games of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

"It was a clear moonlight night with very good visibility," Stevenson said. "As on previous nights the ships were fully darkened in simulated wartime conditions and steaming at 18 knots carrying out a zigzag, or series of course changes, designed to make the submarines attack problem more difficult."

The destroyers were ahead of the Melbourne at distances ranging from 3,000 to 10,000 yards.

At 4:10 a.m., Stevenson said, he ordered the Evans to move from her screening station ahead of the Melbourne to a position 1,000 yards astern of the carrier.

Five minutes later the 3,300-ton World War II American destroyer cut across the bow of the 20,000-ton carrier.

THE AMERICAN destroyer Evans, which was sliced in two by an Australian aircraft carrier (above) during maneuvers in the South China Sea, normally carried a crew of 300 men.

Why Aren't GIs 'Bookers'?

WEST BRANCH, Iowa (AP) — Finding out why more Vietnam veterans aren't going to college will be one of the first goals of Donald E. Johnson as Veterans Administration director.

It will be one aim of a study to be made by the newly named President's Committee on the Vietnam Veteran, Johnson said Friday.

"One of the disturbing statistics is that the Vietnam veteran has not been availing himself of his educational opportunities," Johnson said.

"Whether it's because they are getting an education before they go to Vietnam or because they feel they are getting their education in the service, we just don't know. One aim of the study will be to find out."

Johnson's nomination to head the Veterans Administration was announced by President Nixon Thursday.

The President said Johnson's first assignment will be to head the committee in a study of ways to improve benefits for returning Vietnam veterans.

Johnson, 45, 6-foot-5, 245-pounds, was a combat infantry sergeant in World War II. He operates in farm supply and poultry businesses and a management consulting firm in his home town here.

He said he would leave for Washington Sunday and be in the VA office Monday morning. His nomination to the $42,500-a-year post must be confirmed by the Senate.

Johnson said the study committee would go into all aspects of benefits for Vietnam veterans but he declined to discuss any proposed changes in VA programs.

Drive Against ROTC—Accenting The Negative

Those students who demonstrate against ROTC may have a valid point insofar as they protest the compulsory nature of the programs on some campuses. But as in other areas that arouse their social concern, they all too easily jump from validity to vacuousness by demanding that ROTC be abolished entirely or that academic credits no longer be given for it.

In the name of freedom or humanity, not only would they deprive other students of this particular educational or career option but would deny the officer ranks of the country's armed forces that desirable civilian "flavoring" which ROTC graduates have traditionally provided.

They would not by any means strike a crippling blow at militarism or the military, which could always produce all the officers it needs through officer candidate schools, but they could seriously lower the quality of leadership in the military.

As Gen. William C. Westmoreland remarked recently, "It would be a disaster to have our men led by ignoramus. It is essential to have the ROTC continue to turn out the type of educated officers that we need."

It may come as a surprise to campus activists to learn that they hold no patent on antimilitarism. That, too, is an old American tradition—at least as old, in the case of ROTC, as the first Morrill Act in 1862 that authorized the establishment of land-grant colleges, at which the study of military science "was not to be excluded." The record of one such institution serves as an illustration.

As far back as 1925, there was a movement to eliminate ROTC at the University of Illinois, which had the largest unit in the United States. But it was not until 1963 that the trustees acted to make ROTC voluntary, thus ending 96 years of compulsory military training at that school.

In that year there were 5,200 Army, Navy and Air Force cadets at the University of Illinois—90 per cent of the total enrollment. Total cadet corps last year was down to 1,275.

Contrary to some predictions, however, the annual output of commissioned officers has remained about the same over the past six years. This is because while ROTC is now elective on the part of the student, it is still selective on the part of the military.

The activist's answer to all this, of course, is that war is evil and that anything that contributes to it or enhances the prestige or power of the military is likewise evil.

But until such time as this nation and all nations can lay down their weapons and disband their armies, it is difficult to see what good cause is being served by an antimilitarism that, carried to its extreme, could result in an intellectually impoverished military establishment isolated from the mainstream of American life.

Pilfering Boosts Prices

There is much groaning, and rightly, when the cost of living goes up another notch. Some particular groaning is warranted by the circumstance that the price rise for goods and services is partly caused by losses to crime.

Businesses suffer heavily from inventory shrinkage due to shoplifting and dishonest employees. As losses go up, the cost increase to the manufacturer and retailer must be absorbed by the consumer. The increase arises not merely from the loss itself, but also from higher insurance rates and the growing need for security and surveillance equipment and personnel.

Shoplifting is more in the spotlight than theft by employees. But it is noteworthy that according to an industrial security expert, Lawrence Lief, crime by employees causes four times the loss to shoplifters. Employees, he says, have "a greater chance of conducting their crimes over a period of time without apprehension compared to the outside pilferer."

New electronic detection methods to cut down on thievery are being devised. Closed-circuit television and other sophisticated means of putting the finger on the light-fingered are rapidly growing more common. Privacy suffers thereby. But how else catch those who fancy taking rather than buying?

Not By Names Alone

A certain ex-serviceman named John Smith sent an inquiry to the Veterans Administration the other day. He included his full name and VA file number. Just for good measure he threw in a few other bits of information such as his social security number, military service number, and dates of service.

Which was just as well, considering that the Veterans Administration now numbers 13,130 John Smiths in its files. Altogether, the VA master index file of names includes 310,000 Smiths.

Some other names also pop up frequently. The files contain 202,700 Johnsons, 105,200 Williamses, 145,180 Joneses, 144,000 Browns. The VA reports that its files also contain 496 George Washingtons, 1,640 Robert E. Lees, 44 Ulysses S. Grants and 10 Abraham Lincolns.

So that certain John Smith, one of 13,130 in the VA files bearing his name, was wise to reinforce his inquiry with plenty of identifying data. Anyone else who wants information would be well advised to do likewise, even if he feels sure his name is one in a million. The VA list contains 31 million names.

Violence Commission Report Released

Study Shows Americans Always Tumultuous Nation

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are a rather bloody-minded people who "are likely to remain so as long as so many of us think violence is an ultimate solution to social problems," a task force for the National Commission on Violence reported today.

The 300,000 word report by two scholars was released on the anniversary of the fatal shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, whose assassination led to formation of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence.

It's the first of several task force reports to be issued by the commission, which already has published investigative studies of several civil disorders in the United States in 1968.

The main body of the bulky, two-volume report is a collection of historical and sociological studies delving into violence in the United States since its founding.

A brief summary—by historian Hugh Davis Graham of Johns Hopkins University and political scientist Ted Robert Gurr of Princeton—contained these observations:

"Americans have always been a violent people, although this violence has assumed different forms and has involved different groups . . .

"But Americans have been given to a kind of historical amnesia that masks much of their turbulent past. Probably all nations share this tendency to sweeten memories of their past through collective repression, but Americans have probably magnified this process of selective recollection, owing to our historic vision of ourselves as a latter-day chosen people, a New Jerusalem."

But, Graham and Gurr say, "the 1960s rank as one of our most violent eras."

Added to the black-white confrontations of recent years, the scholars said:

"Contemporary antiwar protest is unprecedented, both in scope and magnitude, as is university unrest and the chilling recent contagion of political murders of national leaders . . .

"Rates of violent crime may have generally declined as the industrial metropolis matured, only to have spiraled alarmingly in recent years—much of it reflecting the pathology of the black ghettos."

The report offered these statistical measures:

—"In numbers of political assassinations, riots, politically relevant armed group attacks, and demonstrations, the United States has been among the half-dozen most tumultuous nations in the world."

"But despite its frequency, civil strife in the United States has taken much less disruptive forms than in many non-Western and some Western countries."

"Eleven of every thousand Americans took part in civil strife from mid-1963 to mid-1968—almost all of it turmoil rather than conspiracy or internal war—compared with an average of seven per thousand in 17 other Western democracies in a similar five-year period."

"Six of these 17 had higher rates of participation than the United States, including Belgium, France, and Italy."

"Although 220 Americans died in violent civil strife in the five years before mid-1968, the rate of 1.1 per million population was infinitesimal compared with the average of 238 deaths per million for all nations, and less than half the European average of 2.4 per million."

"In total magnitude of strife, taking into account the unusual frequency and duration of strife in the United States as well as its more moderate levels of participation and casualties, the United States ranks first among the 17 Western democracies, and 24th among the 114 larger nations and colonies of the world."

"Paradoxically," the report said, "we have been both a tumultuous people and a relatively stable republic."

Graham and Gurr said a primary reason why violence persists in the United States is that "some fundamental grievances in the United States have not only gone unresolved but have intensified in recent years."

The ethnic and cultural mix of the U.S. population, they said, "has meant all but inevitable group competition, friction and conflict."

Are We Educating An Elite Disdainful Of Democracy?

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—Virtually unnoticed in the recent pace of events was a critical question posed to a congressional committee by Dr. Samuel I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State College:

Can we give a superior education to gifted young people without their ending up believing they are a superior order of being, immune to control by custom or law, exempt from the responsibilities of rational discourse and debate, but nevertheless entitled by their superiority to dictate the lives and fortunes of others?

That is, how can we educate the gifted without producing an elitist mentality that despises democracy?

Hayakawa, a famed scholar before he became a college president, says he has faced that same problem within himself.

"I feel it very strongly," says Hayakawa, "because I have a Ph.D. in English and philosophy and used to feel (superior in) this (elitist) way until somewhat more democratized."

Perhaps, he says, it is harder to teach democracy than we ever imagined.

The ancient Chinese did not solve the problem. Their learned men, the Mandarins, became the privileged class.

Plato believed philosophers should be kings, he being a philosopher.

Hayakawa's worry, of course, is occasioned by the attitudes he has observed in some American student and teacher groups:

—Those who do well in college entrance examinations and therefore populate the more prestigious colleges, Hayakawa says, have begun to look upon themselves as superior to other people.

—As an elite class, they do not feel themselves bound by conventions and restraints. They make a cult of hedonism. They despise the useful citizen. They find gratification in shocking the middle and lower classes by outrageous dress and behavior.

—They have a profound contempt for the democratic process, through which ordinary men have a voice equal to their own in the conduct of affairs.

—They find it tedious to discuss or argue matters with functionaries or bureaucrats. They are used to getting their own way when they want it. They impose their wishes on others by brushing aside or shouting down objections, by force if necessary.

—Mixed with all this is a sentimental identification with the downtrodden. It resembles the idealization of the peasant among aristocratic Russian student revolutionaries early in the century. This sympathy with the underdog gives a fictitious moral base to justify their behavior.

Hayakawa points to elitist teachers who mold their students in this disrespect for the common man, for administrators, police, government and who argue the "illegitimacy of contemporary authority."

The brutal question Hayakawa poses is: "What are we teaching our children? What attitudes are we putting in their heads? Do we know?"

According to IQ reports, there were brilliant men in Hitler's cabinet. But there was obviously something wrong with their "education" somewhere along the line.

Is what was lacking a defect in the school, the home or elsewhere in society—or a combination of all?

How general are the student-professor attitudes to which Hayakawa refers? Are they widespread or limited to a small but active minority?

If Hayakawa is correct, what will happen when those youths enter government, business and education in ever-increasing numbers?

Ann Landers:

Complaint Justifiable

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want to make any trouble but I'd like to know if I have a justifiable complaint.

I went to the doctor last week for a flu shot. The nurse whom I am accustomed to seeing in the office was home ill. The doctor introduced me to his 14-year-old son. He appeared to be a very pleasant lad. "Tom is going to be a doctor," his father said with understandable pride. "He's learning to give shots." Then the doctor handed the needle to the boy. I was so stunned I just sat there. The boy did indeed give me the shot.

Isn't there a law to protect patients from this sort of thing? My annual physical examination comes up next month but I'm afraid to go back. Please tell me if the doctor is conducting his practice within ethical limits.—Appleton

Dear Apple: Only trained persons should be permitted to give shots. If something had gone wrong, the doctor would have been liable for a beautiful malpractice suit. What he did was highly unethical and most injudicious.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a guy —22, good build and what you might call an all-around athlete. Ever since I was a kid, I've heard people say I'd be great looking if it weren't for my snout. I've been called Eagle-beak, Durante, Da Nose and a few other names. My big nose never bothered me and it still doesn't, but now I've got a girl who keeps bugging me about getting plastic surgery. She says I'd look like Kirk Douglas if I had a straight, normal size nose. Honest, Ann, it isn't my life's ambition, but secretly I guess I'd like it.

My one big hangup is the ribbing I'd get. The guys would lay it on me till doomsday. What do you think?—Borneo

Dear Born: If the only thing holding you back is the "guys"—go, boy, go. Of course you'd get a royal razzing but it would last for only a week or two, then they'd tire of the subject and talk about something else.

I sense you'd really enjoy a normal size nose, so my advice is go ahead and get one.

Dear Ann Landers: This morning I opened the bread box and found half a pecan roll, an overripe banana, a silver of cake, a plastic bag, two moldy oatmeal cookies and an empty saucer. No bread.

I'm a widow who shares an apartment with my mother (she's 63 and in good health). I work and Mother stays home and keeps house, if you can call it that. I've told her repeatedly that sloppy housekeeping gets on my nerves. She says, "Don't be such an old maid."

Last night we had a few words about the bread box. Mother accused me of being crazy-clean and obsessed with unimportant details. Am I?—Tidy in Mobile

Dear Tidy: Mothers are awfully hard to train, especially when they are over 60. No two women keep house alike, and obviously your mother isn't much of a housekeeper. Accept the fact that Mom is not about to change. When you run into things like the bread box, clean it yourself and say nothing.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Law For Today

Q. Does every will have to be probated? If so, why?

A. No. Every estate which exceeds $5,000 in gross value normally has to be probated. The estate will be distributed in accordance with the will if there is one and, if not, in accordance with Illinois law.

The purpose of probate is to pay creditors of the estate and to distribute the balance to the beneficiaries or heirs, free of debt. Claims against the estate are ordinarily barred if not filed within seven months after the estate is opened.

A will permits a person to pick his own beneficiaries and his own executor. It can also establish trusts for the benefit of minor children.

—Illinois State Bar Assn.

What do you think of... when you see a Church?

To almost everyone, the sight of a slender steeple raised to the sky evokes certain emotions—awe, perhaps, nostalgia, maybe—the sense that by not going to church lately, you've been missing something!

Next time you see a church, take a good look... and let yourself really feel what you see. If that makes you decide not only to look at the outside but also to go inside, that will be all to the good. For no matter how lovely a home you may live in, it can't compare with God's House. If you open the door, you'll find that, no matter how long you've been away, the welcome is warmer and more wonderful than you'll find anywhere else.

Religion In The News

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In a world of minicars, miniskirts and minirebellions, the environment today also is producing an assortment of minireligions.

That's the term which a New York publisher applies to various devotional divergencies now showing up in American culture. Church scholars and sociologists also have cited an up-surge of odd new strains of religiosity.

It's a reaction against scientific rationalism and a "search for nonrational ways of coping," says Dr. Holmes Welch, research associate of the Center for the Study of World Religions at Harvard University.

Referring to the variety of curious religious-like manifestations now current, which depart from conventional faiths, Melvin L. Arnold, president of Harper and Row, told a recent meeting of religious publishers:
"Minireligions may be exerting more influence today than traditional religions. Perhaps we may have been focusing too narrowly up to now in assuming religion meant only the standardized, traditional kinds."

He noted the rising popularity of astrology, spiritual mediums, the widespread cult of escapism in drugs, the cult of violence, and the heavily accented cult of sex.

"We are inundated and drowning in what the Greeks called the religion of Eros," he said of the contemporary sex obsession.

The Rev. Andrew M. Greeley, a Catholic sociologist of the University of Chicago, says the modern generation, in revolt against scientism, is so intrigued by the sacred that it "on the way to becoming superstitious."

"The popularity of witchcraft and astrology, contemplation and mysticism, vegetarian diets and the tarot cards shows how obsessed with the sacred some of the younger generation really is," he writes. A church historian, the Rev. Dr. Martin E.
Marty, of the University of Chicago Divinity, also ticks off a list of some of the proliferating cults in "The world of private religious expression," saying:

"America, 1969, has millions of advocates, devotees or half-believers in astrology, the cabala, drugs, ESP, fortune-telling,
horoscopes, I Ching, Karma, LSD, mysticism, nirvana, oc-cultisms, peyote, quietism, reality therapy, seances, T-groupism, Upanishads, the void, witchcraft, xylomancy, yoga and Zen."

In addition, there are "126 nationalisms, the religions of communism and free worldism, of Black Power, of left and right," Dr. Marty told the meeting of the Religious Publishers Group of the American Book Publishing Council.

There also are the spreading "charismatic" groups, stressing glossolalia, or speaking with tongues, the Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship, investigating para-psychological phenomena, the crowded Soka Gakkai meditation centers on the West Coast.

Back a few years ago, Dr.
Marty noted, some theologians were talking about the world moving into a secular era of "postreligious man and postreligious culture," but instead, he said there are signs of a "new religiousness."

"On the short range, the secular trend certainly continues," he said, but "on the long-range view, ominous and promising new quasireligious, mythical and symbolic forces are to be expected."

He said this includes the "nut groups and faddists," but he added: "The human story seems to be too complex, too passion-al to be sustained without some sort of 'religious' meaning quest."

As for the traditional Judeo-Christian heritage, he said:
"Whatever is coming will imply a fusion of elements in the Jewish and Christian traditions with a new style of consciousness, sensibility and social organization. Something institutional will survive, but it will be transformed."

For the first time in many years, only one rose has won the annual honor of being the choice for the All-America Rose Selections award.

The winner, based on test garden competition, is aptly named First Prize. It is a deep rose-light red blend hybrid tea with large, classically shaped buds.

The flowers are a rich pink blend with waxy glow and fine fragrance. The inside of the petal generally is lighter, giving a two-tone blend. The plants are vigorous and bushy with many blooms on medium to long, strong stems. The ample foliage is dark green.

First Prize will be popular for cut flowers and on the bush, and rosarians already are predicting a fine future for it in show business.

Complicated Ancestry
The genealogy of First Prize is as complicated as the ancestry of many families.

While First Prize is classified as a hybrid tea rose, one of its maternal great-grandparents is Fashion, the most honored floribunda ever developed. Fashion won the AARS award in 1950 and received gold medals from Portland, Ore., the National Rose Society of England, Bagatelle of France, the American Rose Society and the coveted David Furstenberg prize.

The family tree is further complicated by the presence of Great Grandfather Independence, a bright scarlet floribunda, which won both the Bagatelle and National Rose Society gold medals.

Another grandparent is Golden Masterpiece, a hybrid tea reported to be the largest yellow rose, with blooms sometimes exceeding seven inches in diameter.

Another great-grandparent is Enchantment, also a bicolor, with shell pink petals that have gold bases.

The pollen parent of First Prize is hybrid tea Revelry. Revelry rarely is found in commerce, but is widely used for hybridizing because of its fine bud form. Revelry comes from Enchantment and Independence appears in three generations of the ancestry of First Prize, and Independence in two.

The rose-pink color is rather surprising, considering the mixture of colors in First Prize's ancestry. No two experts will agree on how characteristics come to be transmitted to succeeding generations of roses.

ROCKY TO FINISH FACT-FINDING TOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Thursday he is determined to continue his Latin-American fact-finding trips for President Nixon.

The New York Republican said he will go ahead with the final two legs of his four-trip tour despite violence and threats of violence and despite requests by three countries that he not come.

Rockefeller has been forced to skip Peru and Venezuela, and Chile has now asked him not to come on a scheduled visit.

DANVILLE POLICE GET NEW CHIEF

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — William Brey, 38, was named Thursday chief of police in Danville.

Brey has been the head of the Normal police force for two years. He will replace former Chief Leslie L. Denney who retired at the end of last year with a disability.

Lt. Robert Congleton, acting chief since Denney's retirement, will continue in that capacity until Brey assumes command of the 46-man force sometime in July.

Brey will be paid $13,000 a year.

U.S., SPAIN AGREE TO CONTINUE PACT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has reached agreement with Spain—and the State Department with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—for continuation of U.S. military bases in Spain.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the committee, reported the settlement Thursday after a briefing by U. Alexis Johnson, undersecretary of state for political affairs.

It provides for a two-year extension of the 15-year-old arrangement under which the United States maintains a submarine base and three Air Force installations in Spain.

Fulbright said the new agreement will be signed soon, perhaps within a few days.

Youth Dreams Of Cozy Utility

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Far-out decorating ideas often are attributed to youth. But young moderns proved to be surprisingly flexible when they were invited to give opinions on home decorating and planning.
Their ideas make a lot of sense.

Twenty-five young professional people and students at Southern Methodist University were invited to design a dream four-room apartment. Their suggestions added up to coziness, attractiveness, convenience and utility with a few dashes of romantic detail.

They liked a sit-on hearth and a total upholstered sofa. They wanted casual furniture and a Spanish flavor in wood pieces, and they preferred dual-purpose furniture—a special blessing when it comes to entertaining.
Their bathroom would have two outside doors—one leading to the bedroom, one to the hall for guests' use. The bathtub would have sliding glass doors and all the bathroom fixtures would be white.

Off-white walls in other rooms would be complemented by sunshine colored carpets. However, for the dining room they chose a bare tile floor.

In the kitchen, they'd build a chopping block into the counter and they'd hang pots and pans in full view. They'd also have a dishwasher and solid color counter tops.

Spotlights over the fireplace,
dimmers on light switches, lighting under kitchen cabinets were other suggestions.

The group had been given a plan of outer walls and plumbing stacks and went on from there in the project, a joint venture of a magazine (Glamour) and a Dallas builder (Lincoln Property Co.).

NIXON URGES FLAG DISPLAY

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon urged Americans Thursday to display American flags at their homes during National Flag Week beginning June 14.

"A flag is meant to be seen,"
the President said in his Flag Day-Flag Week proclamation.
"Only when it is displayed does it stir us. Our ideals we can honor with our words and our deeds; our flag must be honored by an essential spiritual reaction to a visual stimulus."

MOTHERS DAY GOES HUMOROUS

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember when greeting cards contained a rather sweet verse and were used only for major holidays?

Things have changed considerably, according to Irving Cohen, president of Fifth Avenue Card Shops, the world's largest chain of greeting card department stores. As a result of the company's expanding franchis-ing program, more people around the country are able to avail themselves of their endless array of cards for any and all occasions and situations.

Now, in addition to the usual holiday and birthday cards there are cards for dogs writing to other dogs and cards for cats, and even cards that try to make the best of a normally sad situation such as congratulating someone on their divorce!

According to Mr. Cohen, like every other card-sending holiday it finally appears that Mother's day has at last succumbed to the humor habit. Once upon a time, Mother's Day was an occasion for sending strictly sentimental and traditional flower and lace cards, but it is now evident that many mothers are in store for a hearty chuckle on May 11th. The fun that's poked, however, is sentimental, having to do with cooking and things that mothers are good at rather than shortcomings. Cohen believes that like apple pie, the American flag and home, you just don't knock mom!

River Navigation Revives Cowtown

By DAYTON BLAIR
Associated Press Writer

CATOOSA, Okla. (AP) — Catoosa was a booming cowtown at the end of the railroad in the 1880s, while nearby Tulsa was still practically an Indian village.

Today the little community is again coming into its own as the future end of navigation on the Arkansas and Verdigris rivers.
The one and one-third mile long port with wharves and fun facilities that is under construction here will open large sections of Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas to water navigation for the first time.

From a population low of 638 in 1960, Catoosa climbed in nine years to an unofficial 1,244 even though completion of the turnaround basin for barges is still nearly a year away. A recent survey predicted Catoosa's population will reach 19,000 by 1985.

Rascal Flat, four miles north of the business section, once was a hiding place for outlaws.
Today, giant earth-movers knock out timbers and level the ground for a 1,500-acre industrial park.

Bigger Schools

Downtown Catoosa, for many years a small town off the main highway, is showing the effects of hoped-for prosperity. A new high school building was built to meet increases of 100 to 150 students a year.

Wattie Twist, superintendent of schools, says that within 10 years school officials expect to need a plant 10 times as big.

A new shopping center houses a grocery, restaurant and the weekly newspaper, "The Port of Catoosa Times-Herald." A new bank will open this summer, the first bank here since they were dying in the 1930s. A medical clinic was expanded recently and other buildings are planned.

The nearby Will Rogers Turnpike is being raised where it crosses the Verdigris to permit large traffic on the river.

Instead of Tulsa

Actually, Catoosa isn't where many persons would have expected the navigation channel to end but the alternative—following the Arkansas River into the middle of Tulsa—would have meant additional expensive locks and dams. On this route the turning basin will only be about three miles from the Tulsa city limits.

The whole Arkansas project —extending from here to the Mississippi River—is costing $1.2 billion. It will be bigger than the Panama Canal or the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The Corps of Engineers estimated in 1957 that the Port of Catoosa would handle 8.4 million tons of cargo a year. Later engineering studies have raised the estimate to 13 to 15 million tons annually.

On The House

Doing it yourself can save you money. But not doing it yourself can accomplish the same objective.

The idea is to save money by both ways by knowing when to tackle something and when to hire a professional or, at the very least, to get help from someone with more know-how and experience. The failure to make the proper choice can bring a hatful of headaches and a sense of frustration, not to mention additional costs and possible accidents.

Most of us can do more than we think we can. New homeowners who could never drive nails straight—or thought they couldn't—find themselves expert handymen after a few years. The trick is to tackle projects a little tougher than previous ones, yet not so tough as to be virtually impossible.

The man who intends to install a concrete driveway should first have had some other experience in working with this material. He might have repaired a section of sidewalk and then gone on to bigger things.

The man who plans on refinishing a valuable piece of furniture previously should have done similar jobs on less expensive wooden objects. The man who wants to finish his basement should have gained some knowledge, through personal experience, of working with wood and glue and fasteners even though he may never have built a room.

Sadly, there are many skilled do-it-yourselfers who court trouble by ignoring the directions of manufacturers. This occurs just as often with experienced workers as with beginners; in some cases, even more often.

A man who may have painted both the inside and outside of his house on more than one occasion is quite likely to give no more than a passing glance, if anything, to the instructions on the paint can label. Yet new materials are constantly being added to paints—materials which sometimes require a slightly different but important method of application.

When a man buys a power saw, he is very careful about the manner in which he handles it. He follows all the warnings about safety. He is, in fact, somewhat afraid of the machine, a condition partly caused by the ominous whirring sound more and more used to it, he becomes more and more careless, neglecting to use the safety guard and other devices intended to make the tool safe with normal caution.

The same thing happens in the use of volatile and toxic materials. Familiarity breeds contempt, which almost inevitably leads to explosions and illnesses.

It is important, therefore, to follow directions and to exercise constant vigilance, just as it is the better part of wisdom not to attempt projects far beyond your capabilities.

Rookies Spark Oakland To 5-3 Win Over Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Bert Campaneris ripped three hits and scored three times and rookie Gene Tenace hit his first major league homer for the decisive run as the Oakland A's downed the Detroit Tigers 5-3 Friday night.

Another rookie, George Lauzerique, 2-0, who hurled a five-hitter in his first start last week, gave up only five hits before Norm Cash's two-run homer with one out in the eighth drove him out. Rollie Fingers saved the victory, only the third in nine games for the A's. Detroit has lost four of five.

Tenace's homer, his second hit, came in the fourth inning against Earl Wilson, 4-5, and gave Oakland a 4-1 lead.

Jones' Home Run Lifts Red Sox To 4-2 Triumph

BOSTON (AP) — Dalton Jones slammed a two-run homer in the 11th inning Friday night, giving the Boston Red Sox a 4-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Dick Schofield drilled a ground rule double off reliever Moe Drabowsky with one out in the 11th and Jones followed with a blast into the right field pavilion for his second homer of the season.

The loss was the eighth for the Royals in their last nine games.

Kansas City knocked out Red Sox ace Ray Culp and took a 2-3 lead in the top of the 10th. But George Scott tied it with a towering two-out homer in the bottom half.

Culp, seeking to become the first 10-game winner in the majors, allowed four hits until the 10th, when the Royals filled the bases with none out on singles by Mike Fiore and Joe Foy and Ed Kirkpatrick's safe punt. Jerry Adair broke the 1-1 tie with a two-out single off reliever Sparky Lyle.

Lyle, however, checked the Royals in the 11th and picked up his fifth victory without a loss.

Carl Yastrzemski doubled in the first inning and scored on Reggie Smith's single. The Red Sox managed only three more hits off rookie Bill Butler before he left for a pinch hitter in the 11th.

Laycoe Selected Kings New Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Veteran minor league coach Hal Laycoe signed a two-year contract Friday to pilot the Los Angeles Kings and promised an aggressive team in the National Hockey League.

Laycoe, 46, was presented at a press conference by the Kings' owner, Jack Kent Cooke.

Laycoe's salary was not disclosed but Cooke said he may be the highest paid coach in the league.

Laycoe said he had two years remaining on his contract with the Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League. However, he exercised an escape clause to leave. He will go on the Kings' payroll July 1.

Laycoe succeeded Red Kelly, who left the team by mutual agreement last week. Laycoe coached Portland to seven WHL championships in eight years.

As a player, Laycoe appeared in 571 regular seasons and playoff games as a defenseman for the New York Rangers, Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins.

Redlegs Win 2nd To Gain Split

The State Hospital Redlegs captured the nightcap 6-3 to earn a split with the Christian County Merchants Friday night, losing the opener 5-2.

The visitors scored three times in the second inning to wrap up the first game. Bill Tobin slammed a two-run homer for all of the Redlegs' runs.

The Redlegs, now 2-4 on the year, scored twice in the second of the second game on a single by Roger Wooden, an error and Dave Brown's single. Two more runs crossed in the third on a walk and Sonny Hickox' homer. The Redlegs wrapped it up with two runs in the fifth on Joe Cors' homer, Hickox' double and an error.

CROSS DIKE CLOSED
HAYANA—The new cross dike at Lake Chautauqua is being closed to bank fishing and all public entry according to Refuge Manager Jerry Clawson. The cross dike was opened to the public this year as an additional area for bank fishing and hiking. The closure is necessary due to repeated acts of vandalism and destruction of Government property and equipment.

The closure is effective immediately and will remain for an indefinite period.

Geneva Voices Misgivings About Coming Papal Visit

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA (AP) — This city once known as the Protestant Rome is preparing to welcome Pope Paul VI Tuesday in the spirit of ecumenism, but there are some misgivings about the ecclesiastical trappings that go with a papal visit.

Highlights of the Pope's 11-hour stay include an address to the 50th anniversary conference of the International Labor Organization and a meeting with leaders of the World Council of Churches to emphasize efforts toward Christian unity.

But the biggest public event will be an outdoor pontifical Mass, attended by four cardinals and about 15 bishops, at which 50,000 persons are expected.

Some Protestants express concern at this Roman Catholic display in a center of the Reformation, the city that was home to John Calvin.

The Journal de Geneve commented: "The splendor surrounding the brief stay of the Pope on our soil and above all the open-air Mass does not agree, in our view, with the social and ecumenical significance of his visit."

A letter from a reader published in one newspaper called on the city's government to prevent the Mass by invoking a 1875 law that forbids religious ceremonies "on public roads."

The militant Union for the Defense of Protestantism, in a telegram to Swiss President Ludwig Von Moos, charged that the Pope was coming to Geneva to "destroy the freedom of those who prefer the authority of Christ to that of Rome."

Students of Geneva's reformist Calvin College staged a little noticed protest march through the city carrying banners which called for a "halt to the Pope, halt to obscurantism."

Another small group, the Evangelical Alliance, plans a demonstration Sunday before the big Reformation Monument. Organizers said it was not directed against the papal visit but was to emphasize the role of Geneva as a cradle of the Reformation.

"The Protestants dispersed abroad and the suppressed minorities would not understand if we did not do anything to affirm our faith," the organizers said in a statement.

Ogilvie: 'INCOME TAX MUST PASS'

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Richard Ogilvie said Friday night a survey of his department heads indicated that failure to enact his 4 percent state income tax program could result in:

—No increase in the present $400-per-pupil foundation level "a level which is already inadequate." The governor added: "Chicago school teachers would not get their promised raises."

—"Almost total elimination" of capital improvement projects.

—The closings of 71 parks, memorials and recreation areas, leaving only seven state parks open.

The likely closings of Chicago Circle campus and the Chicago medical center campus of the University of Illinois and possible one-year closings of Northern Illinois and Illinois State universities as well as the freezing of admissions at Southern Illinois University.

State universities and colleges, the governor said, would be "hopelessly crippled" if they don't receive income tax revenue.

Ogilvie said, in a speech prepared for delivery at the Sixth Annual Civic Meeting and Dinner of the Salvation Army's Chicago Advisory Board, that the survey "pointed a future for Illinois that would be catastrophic."

"What is valuable in this survey," he said, "is that it indicates to us the dimensions of the retreat which would be necessary without the added revenue of an income tax—or even with a portion of what

The National Protestant Church, which comprises the majority of the Protestant community, hailed the visit in a statement but added that "at the eve of this visit seems essential to us to affirm our desire to be faithful to the Gospel in the line traced by the Reformers."

"We are aware that different trends are apparent inside the Catholic Church as they are in all other Christian churches," the statement continued. "It remains valid today that, as in the 16th century, we cannot accept and rocket-propelled grenades at 3 a.m. Then enemy troops came over in waves. U.S. artillery, helicopter gunships and Air Force AC47 "Spooky" gunships helped repulse the attack.

Earlier, another big fight broke out nearer Tay Ninh. About 1,000 North Vietnamese attacked a night bivouac of 800 South Vietnamese paratroopers. Field reports said 86 enemy troops were killed. South Vietnamese losses were given as nine killed and 40 wounded.

At Quan Loi, a former rubber plantation 60 miles north of Saigon, upward of 60 North Vietnamese sappers attacked a camp of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division under cover of a barrage of more than 100 rockets.

Five sappers broke through the barbed wire and hurled satchel charges at U.S. bunkers and fired rocket grenades that damaged five helicopters. All five were killed along with six other attackers. U.S. casualties were 11 wounded.

Rocket and mortar attacks hit the headquarters of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division at Dong Tam, the U.S. 1st Infantry Division at Lai Khe and the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division at Phuoc Vinh. The bases are, respectively, to the south, northwest and north of Saigon.

More than 50 rockets hit the U.S.-South Vietnamese military complex at Bien Hoa-Long Binh, 15 miles northeast of Saigon. Field reports said four Americans were slightly wounded.

One rocket attack against allied military installations was prevented as U.S. bombers and artillery destroyed 78 rockets set in firing position from the eastern flank of the Demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam.

The U.S. Command reported needed.

Ogilvie concluded: "I submit that the people of Illinois do not want their state to operate with those crippling dimensions."

the official doctrine of the Roman Church regarding Mass, the adoration of the Virgin, the saints and the relics, the indulgences, the papacy and an equivocalness which makes Paul VI a head of state at the same time as a head of Church."

Swiss officials are trying to insure that the visit is not marred by any radical manifestations. Their work is complicated by the fact that Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and former Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel also will be here.

A Springfield, Ill., lender has filed suit against Financial Security in an effort to recover $31,000 it loaned.

The Oklahoma hearing disclosed that Masiello and several other individuals paid for life insurance policies from Community National with stock of Commercial Finance Corp. of Newark, N.J.

The insurance company accepted the stock last November when it was being traded on the over-the-counter market. Trading was suspended by the SEC in March.

Stuart C. Goldberg, SEC enforcement attorney, told the Oklahoma hearing that last October, Frank G. Buffam, who owned all the Commercial Finance Co. stock then outstanding, had set a price for the stock by calling a broker and telling him to bid $3 for Commercial Finance stock.

As a result of that bid, Goldberg said, the stock was carried at $3 a share in the so-called pink sheets, a daily listing of over-the-counter stocks. Prior to that, the SEC attorney said, Commercial Finance had not been listed in the pink sheets.

"The quotes that appear in the pink sheets mean absolutely nothing," Goldberg said. "Anybody can call up a broker and tell him 'Buy me a share of Commercial Finance at $1,000.' And the broker could then put in a bid at $1,000 into the pink sheets."

Community National had listed among its assets 302,000 shares of Commercial Finance Co. stock which it valued at $1,052,000, or nearly $3.50 a share. Goldberg said that before it was suspended the stock could be bought in New York for one penny a share.

Florida officials took over State Fire and Casualty Co. after they discovered the true value of a block of Commercial Finance Co. stock which has been carried on the company's books at a value of $1,225,000.

The Commercial Finance stock had been used by Mar-Be Enterprises, a company headed by Emile "Tommy the Twitch" Tucker, an ex-convict, to buy control of State Fire. Tucker also was described at the Oklahoma hearing as the man who guided New York people to Oklahoma to get paid-up insurance policies.

The Hart subcommittee is expected to focus on the Florida Company and on the procedures the National Association of Insurance Commissioners uses to evaluate securities.

At the Oklahoma hearing, for example, SEC Attorney Goldberg said Commercial Finance Co. stock was listed in the manual published by the NAIC entitled Valuation of Securities. The manual lists year end values of stocks held by insurance companies throughout the country.

Goldberg said he asked Norman Michigan, executive director of the NAIC evaluation committee, if any check had been made on Commercial Finance Co. before its stock was listed in the manual. He quoted Michigan as saying the only check had been to look up the stock in the pink sheets.

In a telephone interview Friday, Michigan said the evaluation committee was working on a revamping of its procedures. He said he has received an invitation to appear before the Hart subcommittee June 18.

For example, the SEC attorney testified that the Oklahoma firm, Community National, issued $4.7 million in paid-up life insurance in exchange for securities of questionable value.

Florida insurance department officials announced this week that when they took over State Fire they found a small printing press capable of printing bonds, 150 corporate seal machines to certify them and 2,700 powers of attorney authorizing agents all across the country to issue them.

Tom Waddell, an attorney for the Florida insurance department, said the bonds had been issued "all over the country. We still don't know how many have actually been issued."

And Arizona Insurance Commissioner Millard Humphrey said the Phoenix company, Financial Security Life, had issued $4 million in annuities before it was suspended April 18.

Humphrey said investigations had disclosed that the insurance company had issued the policies to people on the basis of notes from Financial General Corp., a Phoenix holding company. Both firms are owned by Philip Goldberg of Phoenix.

Humphrey said that although the insurance company books listed the policies as paid for, investigations had disclosed that little or no money had been paid to the holding company whose notes guaranteed payment of the premiums.

More than $1 million in Financial Security annuities went to William Skillman of Kansas City, Mo., who is under federal indictment on charges of receiving and disseminating stolen postal property.

Nixon Talks About Draft As Prepares For Midway

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon whirled through final mainland meetings Friday before flying the Pacific to Midway Island and a summit conference on war and peace with Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The President takes off Saturday morning on his newly refurbished jet with an overnight stop in Hawaii before meeting with Thieu Sunday.

Nixon spent a substantial part of the day conferring with his top consultant on foreign policy and national security, Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger's arrival the night before began the last crucial phases of preparations for the two presidents to seek agreement in face-to-face sessions on approaches to common goals on the war and peace.

Unquestionably, a point of discussion between Nixon and Kissinger centered on statements Thursday by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who also will be making the trip to Midway as part of the American team.

A peace settlement hinges in large degree on a political settlement between South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front of the Viet Cong. Rogers hinted that one step toward achieving this would be creation of a coalition commission to supervise a national election.

This would give some measure of recognition to the Viet Cong without going completely counter to Thieu's insistence that he would never agree to a coalition government. The question of troop levels and an eventual start on withdrawal of U.S. forces is a topic that White House officials concede will be covered at Midway.

While some key presidential advisers are prepared to outline all possibilities on troop strength, they have offered no confirmation of a flurry of published reports that Midway would produce an announcement on a U.S. troop withdrawal.

Some reports have speculated on pulling out 50,000 to 100,000 men as the South Vietnamese become increasingly capable of taking over their own defense.

In other business Friday Nixon met with 10 young people—two each from Mississippi, New York, Michigan, Iowa and Oklahoma—who have been part of a pilot program for getting the advice of youth on the Selective Service System.

The pilot project began in the Johnson administration and Nixon announced that his administration is going to expand it nationwide to all states, and with separate programs for New York City, the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone and Guam.

Once more, the chief executive took a stand for abolishing the draft and filling up the armed services with volunteers when international conditions permit.

Until that is possible, however, he said every effort must be made to make the selective service system as fair and equitable as possible.

The chief spokesman for the group was John Lloyd, 19, of Ottumwa, Iowa, a student at Drake University, who said those present generally supported a lottery system to get soldiers and thought the present system inequitable.

He said the group reaction to creating a professional army also was generally favorable.

Among specific proposals they made Lloyd said, was the possibility of discarding the requirement that a young man register five days after his 18th birthday. He said registration should take place once a month and on each occasion there ought to be a general question and answer session and explanation of the draft system by selective service officials.

Faulty Diet, Drug Use May Cause Osteoporosis

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
A safety tag with a red, gray and black reflective surface is now available. It is recommended for use by persons who walk near highways after dark. It can be attached by a string to the walker's clothing, a woman's handbag or the handlebar of a bicycle. When in motion, its shimmering makes it easy to see.

(FYI: It is manufactured by the 3M Company, St. Paul, Minn.)

Q—What causes demineralization of the bones? Is there any cure or relief from the terrible pain?

A—When calcium phosphate is lost from your bones (usually the vertebrae), as in osteoporosis, the cause may be faulty diet or prolonged use of drugs of the cortisone group. It is most frequently seen in women who have passed the menopause. For the acute stage you may need a back brace or orthopedic corset. When the pain has subsided, you should keep active but avoid heavy lifting and sleep on a firm mattress. You should also drink milk three times a day or take calcium tablets. Small doses of fluoride are also beneficial.

Q—Five years ago a benign cyst was removed from my left breast. The surgeon told me not to take any drugs that contained female hormones but my family doctor prescribed Premarin for menopausal symptoms and I have taken it for a year. Last month a biopsy showed precancerous tissue in my left breast and the same surgeon removed both my breasts. He said that now that the breasts were removed I could take the hormones but now my family doctor says I should not take them. I'm thoroughly confused. What do you think?

A—This letter illustrates the fact that there is still a lot that even the experts don't know about female hormones and their relationship to cancer. The use of these drugs in the treatment of menopausal symptoms is justified in women who do not have or have never had cancer of the breast or uterus. By telling you not to use them your family doctor is trying to protect you from the risk of getting these diseases.

Q—Is Dubin-Johnson's syndrome serious? What causes it and what can be done for it?

A—This syndrome is characterized by chronic jaundice of unknown cause with mild abdominal pain, weakness and spontaneous remissions and recurrences. There is no effective treatment.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

School's Out! Ah, Me!

By BETTY CANARY

I had just finished scraping up some mashed chocolate-covered mints in the hall when I realized what day it was. The last day of school and I had not only mashed mints and a colony of ants after them, I was going to have another summer. And to think of the time I've wasted on thoughts about how terrible it was for people like Marie Antoinette.

Then there was the squishing of tennis shoes and they were upon me. "We're home!" they called with jolly voices.

"Are you starting an ant farm?" Babs asked. But I was armed with a spray bomb and had declared war.

"She's KILLING them!" Cissy screamed. "Murder!" "Let's just call it an execution," I said. "Let's be rational."

"Let's give them a trial first," Tad suggested. "Look," I said, "you kids go have a glass of juice or something and let me take care of the dirty work."

"That reminds me," Rick said. "Tad has been hiding orange juice again. There are four glasses of juice behind the curtain in the bathroom window."

"He said he drank his juice every morning," Cissy accused. "He's been lying again!"

"No, I haven't!" Tad shouted in rebuttal. "All mother ever says is 'I don't want to see that juice when you're finished with breakfast!' She never did say I had to DRINK it!"

"Come on," Stu said in conciliatory tones, "let's not start our vacation quarreling. After all, this isn't a battleground."

"Right," Rick said. "And it isn't a court room either."

"You are right, dear," I agreed. "This is our home."

"I wish it was summer camp," Babs sighed.

"I thought it was," Stu snarled. "You and Tad put that tent up in the basement and you've stolen some of my camping gear."

"I didn't know that," I said weakly. "And they have a bucket of sand in the bathroom..."

"That's just for a beach when we use the boats!" Tad said defensively.

"Well," Cissy said. "There's nothing wrong with that..."

"I'll be the judge, if you don't mind!" I interrupted.

"But," she continued with her argument, "I vote against Babs keeping their toad in the toy box in MY room."

I didn't lose control. I did shake a bit and scream. "This is NOT a zoo!"

"I think it's like living in prison," Babs cried.

"More like a concentration camp," Tad mumbled as he started up the stairs, "complete with a warden and squealers."

And his father had to pick that time to come in from the office. "What's going on?" he called. "Sounds like a regular madhouse!"

Religion Today

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Graham, the tall, affable North Carolinian who has preached to more people than any evangelist in the world's history, is getting set for a return crusade in the nation's biggest city—with chastened expectations.

"I think I'm more realistic about the possibilities this time," he said. "I don't expect New York to be shaken."

But as he prays, studies and relaxes in the southern sun, trying to shake off a chest cold before the crusade begins next weekend, he still leaves the chance open for it to catch fire and start a wide spiritual restoration.

"If ever there was an hour when that was needed, it's now," he said in a telephone interview. "It's the only answer to the dangerous disorders tearing at our country. It could happen if the communications media picked up the cause and ran with it."

In the 10-day crusade June 13-22 in Madison Square Garden, Graham plans to aim his appeal particularly to the restive generation of modern youth.

"I've about given up on the older people," he said. "They've assumed that technology, science and material affluence would solve all their problems. But the young know better."

"They're the ones who are responding these days. They're in revolt against the organized church, but not against Christianity. They're looking for purpose and meaning in their lives."

As a supplement to the nightly rallies here, a new feature will be a huge "coffee house," set up in nearby Manhattan Center, where the young can gather afterward and talk in an atmosphere of psychedelic lighting and amplified folk-rock music.

There also will be several special "youth nights" in the Garden services. Graham notes that in recent crusades about 70 per cent of his hearers have been under 25.

To Graham, now 50, his crusade here comes in the 20th year of his globe-girdling career of mass preaching rallies that have made him the best-known and most widely heard evangelist in the annals of Christianity.

He has preached in person to 40,000,872 people in about 200 campaigns on every continent, with 1,207,888 hearers committing their lives to Christ.

Namath Threatens To Retire

Schurz Captures State Prep Title

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Schurz Bulldogs became the first Chicago team in 13 years to win the Illinois High School baseball tournament with a 6-3 victory Friday over Pekin in the championship game.

A capacity crowd of 3,500 at Tom Connor Field saw Schurz score six times in the first two innings to take command.

Righthander Jeff Conrad, the team's regular shortstop, became a pitcher and gave Pekin only five hits, 11 below the Chinks' average in the last six games.

Majestic Prince 6-5 Favorite In Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Majestic Prince, fit and fattened again, goes for racing's coveted Triple Crown Saturday as an uneasy 6-5 favorite over two tough rivals and a trio of outsiders in the 101st Belmont Stakes.

The chief rivals are Virginia-bred Arts and Letters, second by a lunging neck and a head to the red California cannonball in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, 8-5 in the early probable odds, and stretch-driving Dike, 2-1.

Namath: Always In The Headlines

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Willie Namath is a sleepily handsome young man from Beaver Falls, Pa., with Rhett Butler sideburns and long hair on the shaggy side.

Meek he is not.

From the day in 1965 when he signed to play professional football for the New York Jets for $387,000 and a swank new convertible, he has been a marked man.

Joe Willie has lit up quite a few rooms since. There was the plush East Side pad with the oval bed, the white llama rug and the $5,000 mink coat in the closet. Lately there was the swinging Lexington Avenue bistro, known as Bachelors III.

where he met some people who were not on Pete Rozelle's list of desirables.

It was the club, owned jointly by Namath and Ray Abruzzese, who played football with Joe both at Alabama and with the Jets, that got Broadway Joe in his latest jam.

Namath never has been one to bow to authority. Although Bear Bryant, his college coach called him "the greatest athlete I ever coached," Joe was in trouble with the coach, and was suspended and sat out part of his college career.

When Milt Woodward, president of the American Football League, told Namath he had to shave off his Fu Manchu last fall he collected $10,000 from a razor company for a commercial.

Here are a few typical Namath quotes:

On a proposed movie career — "Okay, I never acted before. That's like I never played professional football before I signed up."

On missing photo day before the Super Bowl — "I always sleep in the morning, that's the thing to do. You've got to get your rest."

On life in general — "I wish I was born rich. I'd know how to spend money. Boats, planes, cars, clothes, bones, brunettes, redheads, brownheads just so they're pretty. I love them all. ...What's there in life but to relax and have some fun. Man, if you don't have it, you're not living and I like to live."

On a choice between selling his club or facing suspension — "I won't sell it. So I am quitting."

Managing Called Pain In The Neck

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Managing a baseball team "is a pain in the neck," says Ted Williams, after leading the Washington Senators in 55 games.

Baseball's most recent .400 hitter gave his views to Sid Hartman of the Minneapolis Tribune as the Senators prepared to open a three-game series with Minnesota.

"I can't honestly tell you that I love managing," Williams said, adding that there were some aspects he did enjoy.

"I like being on the field," he said. "I like being with the players and talking with them about their problems. I love talking to the players about hitting and pitching. I love the game while we are playing it. I love the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth innings."

"I hate all of the dinners. I hate all of the television interviews and I hate having all of the writers on your neck."

Beckert Suffers Thumb Fracture

CHICAGO (AP) — Glenn Beckert, Chicago Cubs second baseman, will be out of action for three to four weeks after suffering a fractured right thumb in the Cubs 14-8 victory Friday over the Cincinnati Reds.

Beckert was injured in the third inning when he tagged Tony Cloninger to start a double play.

He left the game in the fourth inning after batting.

A spokesman said Beckert's thumb was put in a cast after X-rays disclosed the fracture.

Rampaging Cubs Blast Reds 14-8

CHICAGO (AP) — Ernie Banks and Billy Williams each smashed a three-run homer to launch the rampaging Chicago Cubs to a 14-8 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and their seventh straight triumph Friday.

Ken Holtzman scored his sixth straight victory and became the league's first nine-game winner, but he had to be bailed out of a three-run Cincinnati sixth by Phil Regan who got three outs on three pitches.

Don Young led off a four-run Cub fourth as Chicago boosted its lead to 10-1.

Tony Cloninger, first of five Cincinnati pitchers, was tagged for Banks' three-run homer in the first and Williams' three-run blast in the third.

Schurz broke the game open in the second inning on hits by Conrad, Mike Groth and Bob Dekas and took advantage of four Pekin errors, two of them by losing pitcher Roger Prouty.

Four of the Schurz runs scored directly because of Pekin errors and all six were unearned.

The Bulldogs scored their single run in the first when Ken Gilard walked, was sacrificed to second and came home on a throwing error by first baseman Mike Bennett.

Rally In Late Frames

Pekin rallied in the seventh and final inning, scoring two runs after two were out. An error, a single by pinch batter Joe DeFrates, a passed ball and a double by pinch batter Mike Mathews scored the two runs.

Pekin also scored a run in the second when Robbie Harms lined a 335-foot homer to left.

Prouty, who allowed seven hits, held the Bulldogs to one hit after the third inning. Pekin outfielder Warren Key was the tournament's most valuable player and also leading hitter with seven hits in 12 at bats. Key had one hit in the title game.

Conrad, whose sacrifice fly in the 12th inning Thursday had given Schurz a 4-3 quarterfinal victory over Newton, won his third game as a pitcher without a defeat.

Schurz placed four players on the all-tournament team, voted by writers and broadcasters covering the event.

Bullfrogs chosen were first baseman Pete Dornan and outfielders Bob Dekas and Bob Nelson.

Other selections were pitchers Mike Bennett of Pekin and Gary Hagen of Alto; Harms and Key of Pekin; shortstop Paul Mulvey of Newton and second baseman Randy Kersten of Naperville.

RACE TRACKS SOLD

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Garden State Park and Hialeah, two of the nation's leading thoroughbred tracks, were sold Friday by Eugene Mori in a $56 million package deal to the Campbell Soup Co. of Camden, N.J.

A Garden State spokesman said Garden State, in turn, was sold by the soup company to the Man O War Racing Association of Philadelphia. Man O War announced it would operate the track for the benefit of hospitals in the Philadelphia and Camden areas.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tony Horton drove home four runs with his ninth and 10th home runs and Ken Harrelson hit a two-run homer powering the Cleveland Indians to a 8-3 victory over the California Angels Friday night.

Horton's first homer came with two men on and capped a four-run uprising in the first inning off loser Jim McGlothlin, 4-4.

Horton's second came in the fifth inning after Harrelson had unloaded his sixth home run into the lower left field seats with Larry Brown on base.

Cleveland's victory was its third in a row, the club's longest winning streak of the season.

Relief pitcher Juan Pizarro took over for starter Horacio Pina in the third inning with a run in and two men on base.

He got out of that inning, but Aurelio Rodriguez tripped in a California run in the fourth and scored on Bubba Morton's single before Pizarro blanked the Angels the rest of the way.

Ultimatum Ruffles Namath's Principles

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway Joe Namath, the $100,000-a-year quarterback of the champion New York Jets, said Friday that he was quitting football because of an ultimatum to sell his interest in a swinging midtown lounge or face suspension.

The 26-year-old star of the Super Bowl champions, said he was told by authorities that his place — Bachelors III — was being used by bookmakers and he was warned by pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle to get rid of his interests within two days. Suspension was the alternative.

"It was the toughest decision I've ever had to make," said Namath, tears trickling down his face at an emotional press conference at Bachelors III. "It's a matter of principle. So I quit. I'm retiring—finished."

Asked if his differences with Rozelle could be resolved, Namath replied "I hope so. The last thing I want to do is quit football."

Three other first stringers of the Jets, the American Football League champions who upset the heavily-favored champion Baltimore Colts of the National Football League in the Super Bowl last January, said they also would quit if their swash-buckling teammate was through.

They are George Sauer, the all-AFL split end, defensive back Jim Hudson and tight end Pete Lammson. All are Texans.

Rozelle said Namath, who had given indications of retiring before because of gimpy knees and movie offers, had until Friday night to unload his one-third interest in the bistro at 62nd St. and Lexington Ave.

The commissioner said Namath had been warned repeatedly about the "undesirable background and habits" of certain persons frequenting the establishment.

Rozelle Surprised

Rozelle said he was surprised by Namath's announcement. He said he was told Thursday night by the player's lawyer that his interests were in the process of being sold and that it would be accomplished by 10 a.m. Friday.

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS, (AP) — Barry Moore and Darold Knowles combined for a four-hitter and Frank Howard scored the only run on a double play grounder in the sixth inning as the Washington Senators nipped the Minnesota Twins 1-0 Friday night.

The victory, eighth for the Senators in their last 10 starts, lifted them to the .500 mark a 28-28. The loss snapped a three-game winning string for the Twins.

Howard, whose three sharp singles paced Washington's 11-hit attack against loser Jim Kaat, 5-43, and three successors, led off the sixth with a hit to left. Brant Alyea walked and Ken McMullen singled, filling the bases, before Howard lumbered home as Dick Billings tapped into a double play.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Unbeaten Dave McNally pitched a four-hitter and notched his eighth victory as the Baltimore Orioles continued their blistering pace with a 5-1 decision over the Seattle Pilots Friday night.

Frank Robinson and Paul Blair each drove in a pair of runs as the Orioles rapped out 10 hits.

The Seattle run was unearned, with Tommy Harper scoring in the sixth on a balk after reaching base on an error by left fielder Don Buford. Robinson, who was thrown out of the game after disputing a strike call in the seventh, drove in the first run off loser Gary Bell, 2-6 with a first inning sacrifice fly and hit his 14th homer in the third.

The Orioles win was their 18th in their last 22 games.

Curt Flood singled with one out in the seventh and took second on a ground out. After Joe Torre was walked intentionally by loser Danny Coombs, 0-1, McCarver got his third hit to put the Cardinals ahead 4-3.

Lou Brock doubled in another run in the eighth and Mike Shannon did the same in the ninth. Nelson Briles, 4-4, who needed relief from Joe Hoerner in the ninth, got the victory.

Do You Need To Go On A Diet?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Do you want to go on a diet? About one out of every three adults you meet seems to be either on a diet, planning to go on a diet, or fighting conscience pangs because he started a diet but hasn't been able to stick to it. To be on a diet is an "in" thing. People who are of normal weight are uncomfortable because they make uncomfortable those around them who aren't of normal weight. So they, too, go on a diet just to be in style.

So the question arises, is it really necessary for you to go on a diet? Here are a few ways to tell. You probably don't have to go on a diet unless—

When you tie your shoes in the morning, you notice that the distance of your feet appears to have increased.

Your enemies start calling you "skinny."

When you get a medical examination, the doctor has trouble feeling your liver.

You make a check of the calories you are consuming, and discover that you are spilling more of them on your necktie at lunch than your teen-age daughter eats all day.

No matter how few people are standing with you on a bus you still feel a bit crowded.

When you race to the refrigerator to grab a beer during a television commercial, you come back to the set carrying two cans instead of one.

To determine whether you need a fresh shine, you stick your shoes out one at a time because it is too much trouble to bend over and look at them.

As you sit down in an easy chair, you sigh; as you try to struggle up from it, you grunt.

It is getting harder to button the collars of shirts that always seemed comfortable before.

You start receiving mysterious invitations through the mail to join a health club.

After climbing into your car, you take several deep breaths as if you had just ascended Mt. Everest.

If you drop a penny from your pocket, you let it roll away; if you drop a nickel or a dime, you ponder for five full seconds before stooping and picking it up.

The sandwiches you make as a snack before retiring are half an inch thicker than those you made 10 years ago.

When you stand at the beach on a bright day, small children crawl gratefully into the shadow cast by your stomach so they can escape the sun's glare.

Yes, you do need to go on a diet—no matter how many false pals tell you they never saw you looking better.

Kit Instructions Hard; She Seeks Easier Method

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My problem is frustration with the complicated instructions furnished with a recently purchased afghan kit. I want to make one that begins with a dark shade and graduates out in lighter shades and then has a final border of black. All of this would make a four-inch square which when joined with others would make the completed afghan.

I think beginners would understand more easily if someone would spell out each step and not assume that we know what is meant. Could someone experienced at crocheting help me and all the others who would like to crochet one of these beautiful afghans but are agast at the instructions with commercial kits?—MARG, an editor

DEAR POLLY—This is in answer to Emily's question of how to treat and finish an old pot-bellied stove that she wants to use for a planter or for making a lamp. With a really stiff wire brush, I cleaned and brushed off all excess dirt and rust, inside and out. Next came a coating of one of the rust preventive sprays, followed by one or two coats of flat black paint which could be either sprayed or brushed on. Mine looked lovely, has lasted for the past five years and still looks great as a planter. I am sure it would also make a lovely lamp.—MRS. F.B.

our black pot-bellied stove and blasted inside and out to remove all the rust. Then he painted it with dull wrought-iron paint. It was then made into a lamp by fitting a piece of wood (he used oak about an inch thick) in the place where the stove pipe came out. Then fastened to it a brass rod and arm like a bridge lamp's. I bought a glass ash tray for less than 50 cents that just fits in the hole where a stove lid used to be. A planter could be put where I have this ash tray. He installed a small red light bulb inside. When turned on, this glows through the slots in the front of the fire door as though there were a fire inside.—VIVA

DEAR POLLY—My young son had trouble remembering whether or not he had fed his goldfish so I took a piece of cardboard, wrote the days of the week on it. Now every morning after he feeds the fish he sets the food box on that day of the week so we have no more hungry fish.—MRS. T. O.

DEAR POLLY—An excellent and safe substitute for an ash tray for the back seat of compact cars that do not have one is a small can with a TIGHT-FITTING lid, such as a baking powder can. We discovered this handy trick during a recent trip.—ANN

Sheepskins are one of Illinois' best crops.

Higher education is one of the real "growth industries" in Illinois Power territory today. Our energy runs laboratories, heats dorms, illuminates stadiums and supplies the "midnight oil" for more than 50,000 students at 19 college and university campuses.

In the past 10 years, the growth in our college population has equalled the size of a small city. We started planning and building to handle this increased demand for energy when today's graduates were still in Little League. (Some of us may have coached their teams, too).

Not even our long range planners know what the future holds. But we do know that Illinois Power will be ready to meet the demands for energy anywhere in our territory when the graduates of 1979 get their sheepskins.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With inflation now accelerating to a rate well in excess of 5 per cent a year, Americans are reducing the amount going into savings accounts, are cashing savings bonds, and are borrowing on insurance policies.

These are among the ways in which households, hard pressed in the midst of plenty, are attempting to offset swiftly rising prices and taxes.

This week the government announced that for the sixth straight month redemptions of savings bonds and freedom shares exceeded sales in May. The outflow was $12 million, compared with an influx of $38 million a year earlier.

At the same time, the rate of savings by American families is falling. Personal savings as a per cent of disposable income dropped from 7.1 per cent a year ago to 6.1 per cent in 1968's first three months.

The records of savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks show clearly what is happening. Savings and loans had withdrawals in April of $520 million. Mutual savings banks lost deposits of $200 million in the same month.

Similar evidence of financial strain is shown by records of life insurers.

Almost all large companies report steady increases in policy loans. And the Veterans Administration reports a similar experience with the National Service Life Insurance policies. For the first three months of 1969, the Institute of Life Insurance reports, the dollar value of policy loans issued was 23 per cent higher than a year earlier, and indications are that the high rate persists to this day.

Some of the larger companies now have more than 4 per cent of assets on loan, and in some instances the percentage is much higher. The experience of Metropolitan Life, second largest in the nation, is perhaps typical.

On Dec. 31, 1966, Metropolitan had about 3.95 per cent of its assets on policy loans. A year later the figure had risen to 4 per cent. By the end of 1968 the percentage had risen to 4.06 and by April of this year had jumped to 4.12.

Figures compiled by the ILLI show that in the first three months of this year insurance companies made loans on policies totaling $801 million, a jump of nearly $150 million over the figures of a year ago.

The increases are even sharper when compared with figures for the 1960s, before inflation became established. Figures for 1966 through 1968 already reflect the beginning of the trend that is now accelerating.

FUNNY BUSINESS

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The already wobbly stock market was hit Friday with developments which sent it slumping in late trading.

These influences were: —Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York initiated an increase in the broker loan rate to 8 1/2 per cent from 7 1/2 per cent. Some other banks followed.

—Attorney General Mitchell said the government will take a harder attitude toward mergers in enforcement of antitrust laws.

The market had been cautious all week while awaiting results of the meeting between President Nixon and South Vietnam President Thieu Sunday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials started tumbling in early afternoon and closed with a loss of 5.94 at 924.77 after having been up 1.62 during the morning.

The Associated Press 60-stock average fell 2.1 to 329.6 with industrials off 2.7, rails off 1.5 to a new 1969 low, and utilities off .9.

Of 1,577 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 904 declined and 429 advanced. New 1969 lows topped new highs by 127 to 26.

Volume of 12.52 million shares was a bit ahead of the 12.35 million Thursday. The New York Stock Exchange ticker tape was three minutes late in reporting floor transactions at the closing bell.

Airports, electronics, utilities, nonferrous metals, chemicals, rails, oils, airlines and tobacco were mostly lower. Drugs were among the major groups to advance.

Scientific Resources, a computer leasing and servicing company, topped the Big Board most active list, off 1/2 at 20 1/2 on total volume of 398,000 shares, including blocks of 238,700 and 110,000.

A block of 240,600 shares of Continental Telephone was traded at 25, unchanged. The issue closed up 1/4 at 25 1/4.

Prices fell on the American exchange with its index showing a loss of 18 cents to $30.52. Volume of 5.92 million shares compared with 5.56 million Thursday.

New Policies Offer Broader Coverage

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

If you tend to spend Sunday afternoon sitting around worrying about things like, "What if the house got hit by a spacecraft?" don't let the rest of the family tell you that you're behaving oddly.

Those eminently sane and coldly deliberative men who manage the big insurance companies have been pondering exactly that possibility. What's more, they've decided you'd better be insured against it. The standard "homeowners" package now covers damage caused by "self-propelled missiles or spacecraft."

It doesn't even specify terrestrial spacecraft. Presumably, you can recover if the house gets hit by a vehicle from Mars or Venus, with or without little green men in it (no restrictions on that account, either). All of which says something about the present state of the world—and we think we'd rather not know what it says.

To look on the brighter side, a number of changes have been made in the homeowners' policies, the Journal of American Insurance reports, which improve your coverage on more likely losses, and also make it possible to cut your premiums by as much as 25 per cent, in the 37 states which have thus far approved the new policies.

There is, for example, an increase in personal property coverage that costs policyholders nothing extra. Previously, personal property was insured only up to a value of 40 per cent of the amount of coverage on the house. New policies increase this to 50 per cent.

Coverage is also provided on personal property that's moved to a new location for up to 30 days—good news for travelers and vacationers. Previously, an extra-premium rider was required to cover off-the-premises losses. (There are still items such as jewelry, furs, and cameras that you'll need to insure separately, however.)

Anyone who has ever tried to collect on property lost in a stolen car will welcome another change. Previously, you had to prove there had been forcible entry—an impossibility if the car was never recovered. That requirement is dropped in the new policies.

You're also able to recover for the theft of unattended property in an unlocked car, provided you've surrendered the keys to a garage or parking lot attendant.

In modernizing the homeowners' policies, the companies have almost, if not entirely, eliminated the insurance buyers' puzzlement over which of the various "forms" he should have. There have been, in most states, five different forms, each providing a different package of assorted coverages.

The main difference in forms now consists of the varieties of perils insured against. Making the decision on which form you want now entails only deciding which of the various perils threaten your particular property.

And finally, if you're willing to accept a larger deductible, you can save substantially on premium costs. The new policies give you a choice of $100, $250 or $500 deductibles—and, of course, the larger the deductible, the lower the premium.

You'll have all this explained to you, one hopes, the next time your policy is due for renewal. But you may want to check with your insurance agent to see whether the new policies have been approved in your state, and switch to one of the new types now.

Especially if you spend much time worrying about low-flying spacecraft.

UCLA: Why Not The Berkley Road?

By GARVEN HUGHINS
AP Education Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the wake of the strident birth of the Free Speech Movement, on the University of California, Berkeley campus in 1964—an event which ushered in the current, turbulent era of student unrest—it was expected that the university's southern branch in Los Angeles would erupt in matching chaos.

Together, the two institutions form the keystone of the huge, nine-campus University of California system. They are roughly the same size with the same admissions requirements. Both share the same Board of Regents and the same operating philosophy. And both attract a large—29,000-plus—and sophisticated student body.

The fact that UCLA has not gone the Berkeley road but remains an eye of academic calm in the student hurricane is something of a phenomenon in this time of trial for youth and for an older generation trying, across the gap of years and experience, to understand what the tumult is all about.

There is no single reason why the sunny UCLA campus has been spared.

The same complaints are voiced here that students raise at Wisconsin, Columbia or Harvard.

But, reforms and changes have come here, not in response to immediate pressure, but as a result of careful, joint planning by students and administrators.

Right after the Free Speech Movement swept the Berkeley campus, students, faculty members and administrators at UCLA organized a blue-ribbon commission. Its assignment was to work out the rules which UCLA would go by.

The commission met through an entire weekend and came up with a formula called the

"Time, Place and Manner System."

It was, simply put, a design for living and working at UCLA and it represented a maximum student input. The formula has remained relatively unchanged over the past five years.

The "Time, Place and Manner" formula not only provided the blueprint for a financially and administratively autonomous system of student self-government, but it also got down to the specifics of campus life. Students themselves ruled that rallies involving the use of amplified loud-speakers would be held away from laboratories where scientific experiments were being conducted and at a distance from libraries. Procedures for electing student officers and student activity chairmen to the legislative council along with faculty and alumni representatives also were spelled out.

The nuts and bolts for managing and turning out campus publications, organizing student clubs and selecting student committees is part of the formula, together with provisions for representation on the university's academic Senate, which affords students a direct voice in curriculum development and change.

Byron H. Atkinson, UCLA dean of students, believes the location of the campus, hard by the affluent Los Angeles districts of Beverly Hills and Westwood, helps explain the calm which prevails.

Graduate student Harry Whitaker, working for his Ph. D. in linguistics, comes close to what appears to be the heart of the matter.

"There seems to be a tradition here," he says, "to bringing any viable student organization into direct contact with the administration. This includes the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and the Black Students Union."

All students at UCLA, Whitaker says, have access to major decision-making bodies on the campus.

"This access provides for discussion immediately upon the raising of an issue. As a result, confrontation is prevented. The discussion stage always is the first stage."

It was the students, Whitaker adds, who helped pick 37-year-old Chuck Young as chancellor to succeed the university's former, highly successful administrator, Franklin Murphy, now chairman of the board of the Los Angeles Times-Mirror Corp. Young, one of the youngest men to head any major U.S. university, stepped up from his job as vice chancellor to Murphy last summer with a firsthand knowledge of student affairs gained over five years as a UCLA administrator.

His aim was, and is, to keep in closest personal contact with his students on any issue raised.

"The willingness of the administration to be receptive and open to requests from students for consideration of student problems always has been a part of the picture here," commented Vice Chancellor Paul O. Proehl. "There has always been this feeling of free access."

Young believes a major difference between UCLA and other large university campuses has been the development of what he calls meaningful student participation over a long period.

Young doubts that UCLA's student body includes a significantly larger conservative element than Berkeley, for example.

"But I would guess that non-extremist, committed liberals are more prevalent here," he says.

"The guiding principle for us in admitting minorities," says Young, "has been to do extensive recruiting among people we have considered capable of meeting our standards. In borderline cases, where high school records are not indicative of competence but of educational and environmental problems, we take these into serious consideration."

"Our admissions policies are set," Young says. "We have to be able to respond to the public as to how we admit applicants on an equitable basis."

Faced with this situation, UCLA last summer launched a student-backed program to recruit additional minority students.

The program, called "High Potential," involves throwing the admissions rule book away and admitting minority students who look like good prospects.

When admitted, high potential students are given specially structured courses and taught often by secondary school teachers with genuine experience in helping minority students overcome barriers to educational progress.

By the time the second quarter rolled around this year, UCLA was able to move about one-third of the 100 High Potential students into regular college-level programs.

The High Potential program currently is concentrated on Negro and Mexican-American students.

Here's How

Here's a prescription for new rosis: buy a house.

A house is a fascinating occupation. In addition to providing shelter, it keeps its occupants so busy that they barely have time to dwell on their other problems.

If one likes to worry, one can have a ball with a house. In winter, you might wake up to find that your house is freezing because you have run out of oil or that your roof has been leaking through the night or you even might find that the door has blown open and the pipes have frozen and burst.

In summer, you might lie awake worrying that you can hear termites gnawing at the foundation.

Most apartment dwellers have little opportunity for such adventures. In large cities, many cliff dyellers do worry about burglars entering their homes at night, and many people sleep with their lights on. But these problems may be solved by buying dogs and wearing eye-shades.

A house really has the edge when it comes to worries. You can have family battles over whether the recreation money should go toward a new swimming pool or a Caribbean cruise, and whether you should have a deck or an enclosed porch. Such arguments are stabilizers.

One woman's problem is as simple as this: she has been removing wallpaper from one wall with a steamer for two days, and she has made only a three by eight-foot progress and has three times the distance to go.

That kind of problem can keep you going for quite a while. When you become physically exhausted from holding the heavy steamer, trying to remove the six layers of paper and paint that have been put on like laminated steel in the last hundred years, you can call for help. The professional worker will probably suggest that it will be cheaper and easier to remove the plaster. Great! He might be right.

The problem might have been avoided by painting over the paper or applying a heavy flocked paper to it. But that wouldn't provide a worry outlet.

Perfectionists can make themselves miserable and revel in it as house owners. Take one neighbor who painstakingly removed a first-class paint job from a white door using paint remover, blow torch, putty knives and goodness knows what all. The doors looks like a slab of terrazo with its pockmarked new blue-painted surface. Naturally, he will redo it, which will keep the tension mounting.

A perfectionist in such a dilemma may be hurt only by realizing that the door might have been beautiful with new paint on the old smooth surface. Fortunately, perfectionists seldom look back. Their lint picking keeps them going.

When there is a lull there is nothing more to trouble one than when Tabby will have her next litter of kittens, one might close one's eyes and worry.

Will you be able to remove the garden furniture from its winter storage . . . should you begin seed flats in the cellar or buy little plants . . . should the flagstone terrace be repaired or the cracks hidden with furniture this year again . . . do you have enough insurance to cover accidents on your property . . . will taxes go up . . . will that new road take your house . . .

FIRST STOP: SECOND-HAND STORE

CHICAGO (AP) — Second-hand store shopping for furniture when decorating a new home or redesigning an old one can be fun, says a California interior decorator.

Carole Eichen of Fullerton, Calif., advised here that it's a good place to look for old wooden ice-boxes, weathered wicker chairs, wind-up victrolas, even old church pews.

All can be brought back to life with a coat of two of paint or polish, she says. Mixed with modern furniture, such items add charm and interesting accents to a home.

'YOU'RE IN LOVE CHARLIE BROWN' RETURNS JUNE 11

The end of the school year and the coming of summer are greeted joyously by the "Peanuts" gang—with the exception of good ol' Charlie Brown, for whom they mean a romantic setback—in "You're in Love, Charlie Brown," starring the comic-strip characters created by Charles M. Schulz. The half-hour animated color cartoon special will be rebroadcast Wednesday, June 11, (7:30-8 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. During the last days of school, Charlie becomes determined to express his affection for his secret love, a little redheaded girl, before they are separated by the annual hiatus. The Peanuts are torn between sympathy for Charlie's romantic plight and hilarity at his bumbling efforts to woo the moppet siren.

BECOMES MESSENGER—Comic George Carlin becomes a messenger on ABC-TV's weekly variety series This is Tom Jones 8-9 p.m. Thursday, June 12. Actress Patti Flood, playing the role of one of host Tom Jones' ardent fans, has just given the perplexed comedian a birthday cake to bring back to the United States for her brother—who, she claims is watching the show. Griffin To Star In Nighttime Talk Show

"The Merv Griffin Show," late-night variety-talk series which premieres Monday, Aug. 18, (10:30-12 p.m.) in color on the CBS Television Network, will originate five evenings a week in the historic Cort Theater in New York, a Broadway showcase for more than half a century.

Griffin, popular host-singer-actor whose syndicated series has been seen throughout the country for the past four years, will star in the Network's first regular late-night presentation. Arthur Treacher, the distinguished stage and screen actor who assisted Griffin on his syndicated series, will also serve as announcer on Griffin's Network show.

Presenters Named For Emmy Awards

Jack Benny, Leslie Uggams, Don Knotts, Goldie Hawn and Robert Brown form the first contingent to be announced as presenters of the 21st annual Emmy awards by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for outstanding achievement in the medium.

The 90-minute broadcast of the gala event will be presented in color on the CBS Television Network Sunday, June 8 (9-10:30 p.m.). Merv Griffin, who starts his own five-a-week late-night show on the Network on August 18, will be the East Coast host at Carnegie Hall in New York. Bill Cosby will serve as his alter ego at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium in California.

DOES DOUBLE DUTY

Actor Roy Roberts, portraying a three-star Air Force general in a "Here's Lucy" episode filmed at the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs for fall broadcast on the CBS Television Network, found himself doing double duty during the first day on location there. While a parade of cadets was being filmed, Roberts watched from the stands, in uniform. He was taken by surprise when visiting officers mistook him for a real general and saluted as they passed. "It was easier to return the salutes than try to explain," Roberts says.

Improbable Elements In Betty's Discovery

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the golden era of the movies, a press agent's story about the "discovery" of Lana Turner sipping a soda in a Hollywood Boulevard drug store sent a lot of naive, ambitious young girls to the film capital, into the drug store—to meet disillusionment.

Betty Beaird's Hollywood experience has some of the same improbable elements: She went to the television capital on her first visit in the fall of 1967, an unknown looking for work. She had a letter of introduction to producer Hal Kanter. This led to a screen test which led to a featured part in "Julia." And "Julia" stacks up as probably the most successful new series of NBC's 1969-70 season and is all set for a long run.

The odds against Miss Beaird's successful exploit are roughly those of producing quintuplets.

But, as is almost invariably the case, Betty's "overnight success" had behind it years of quiet preparation. All of it combined to help her use that lucky break when it came.

Betty, whose Scotch-Irish surname is pronounced "Baird," grew up in Houston. After majoring in business administration at the University of Texas, she got a job writing copy for a radio station. Then came a year as an entertainer at a Colorado ski resort.

New York was next on her itinerary and she grabbed a secretarial job at NBC in lieu of an acting job. This led to a production assistant's spot on the old "Arthur Murray Show," which in turn led her to Goodson and Todman at a time when their game shows were proliferating all over the networks.

Assigned to "Say When," she first wrote some of the material and then, because it was easier than having someone else learn her lines, she started doing comedy warmups for the game show's studio audience.

Commercials came into her life then.

"I guess I look like the average young housewife," said Betty. "But when 'Say When' went off the air, I was doing them and was able to spend a couple of years studying drama and voice. I must have done about 30 commercials and I was making a lot of money."

Then, just as she had quit Texas for New York, she decided to move on to California, where most of the TV action took place. This time, however, she was armed with letters of introduction, including the one to Kanter.

"I called up Mr. Kanter's office and they told me they were looking for a girl to play Earl J. Waggoner's mother—Earl is the little white boy who is Corey's playmate. Diahann Carroll, of course, was all set, but they were still looking for the two boys. They were nice and told me to send in a picture and a resume, but I decided that I'd take it in myself." She did, and hung around until she could hand them to Kanter herself. They went on a high stack of applications.

Then—nothing happened, nothing at all. She went back to New York.

She had scarcely unpacked when a telephone call came from the coast—could she be back there for a screen test in two days?

"I went flying back," she recalled, shuddering at the memory, "and got hold of a script. I got that down—and discovered that somebody had sent the wrong script. They gave me the right one at 7 a.m., and told me to come back again at 4. I tell you, it was sheer panic."

Off camera, Betty looks younger and thinner than she does on camera. She also wears tortoise shell rimmed glasses and usually can mingle with any crowd of shoppers without being recognized.

SOLVE PROBLEM—Joan Blondell and Robert Brown are happy and triumphant, having solved a problem of "Lovers and Wanderers" on ABC-TV's Here Come the Brides 6:30 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 11.

DEMONSTRATES SINGING DYNAMICS — Johnny Cash demonstrates his singing dynamics in solo performance and with guests folksinger Gordon Lightfoot, songster Evie Sand, actor Dan Blocker of TV's "Bonanza" and the comedy team of Clair and McMahon on ABC-TV's The Johnny Cash Show Saturday, June 14 (8:30-9:30 p.m.)

Sunday

IC Commencement
Planned In Grove

The annual Illinois College commencement week activities will be climaxed on Sunday with four events, including the commencement exercises with awarding of degrees at 3 p.m. in the College Grove on the campus, just south of Rammelkamp Chapel. The public is invited to all events.

In the event of inclement weather, the commencement exercises will be held in Memorial Gymnasium. There will be plenty of seats available, regardless of the weather, college officials have stated.

Dr. Julian M. Sturtevant of the Yale University faculty and great-grandson of one of the college's founders, will deliver the main address, "The Inevitability of Change," at 3 p.m. The morning baccalaureate service sermon, "The Disappearance of Man," at 10:30 a.m. will be given by Dr. Carl E. Hill Industries Employees Strike

Employees of Hill Industries, corner of Kosciusko and West Morgan, are on strike pending negotiations for higher pay and benefits.

The picket line was set up Wednesday and was still in evidence Friday noon.

Negotiations between the company and union officials have been in progress since February according to a union spokesman.

The employees handle electrical parts assembly and steel fabrication.

The difficulty centers around a $2 per hour pay rate sought by the union and the existing rate of $1.60. Also, the union seeks fringe benefits in the form of a pension fund.

A management spokesman said that the strike affects only those employees of Hill Industries not at Teleleasing, Inc., or Teledyne. Work in the plant is continuing with the use of supervisory personnel.
